meet the designer

My crafting adventure began in last class of primary school, 15 years ago. I started from Christmas cards made with natural products from my mum's kitchen like coffee beans, corn, pumpkin seeds. Those cards were also part of charity auction at my school and have been bought for hight price. I also had couple of interview in local press as a young spotlighted artist. This success motivate me to develop my creativity. Fortunately it was a wedding time in my family so I gathered all flowers, ribbons, decorations to reuse on my cards.

University time was a time of creating mostly wedding invitations for friend's weddings, then I stopped for a while because we were moving.

Now I have finally found my place in UK, and started again. In 2013 artekatie blog was set up, with old cards. I discovered a crafty world again trying to build my style and workshop again. In 2014

I started to take part in crafting challenges with a lot of successes!

Personally I am a girlfriend, from 2015 a designer at card's blogs and owner of two cats who love when I create. You can meet me at local markets in East London recently. I'm happy!
